Specific team skills move players in a hyperrealistic manner across a variety of game modes. Players will be able to use these skills more naturally and dynamically, bringing an entirely new dimension to these enhanced abilities. The “HyperMotion Technology” engine also delivers a real-time biomechanical analysis of how players collect and develop speed, momentum and power from a world-class biological motion capture rig. Players of all abilities will be able to experience an authentic feel of how speed, acceleration, force and momentum are generated to seamlessly transition through either an attack or defense. This in-depth analysis of fast-paced football movement has never been possible before. “We are excited to begin work on this new season of gameplay in the most accurate biomechanical and realistic motion capture way possible,” said Ian Bell, head of FIFA. “This technology was developed to make gameplay more authentic and enjoyable, and we are confident that this new approach will definitely deliver on that promise.” In addition to sports mode, FIFA is introducing a new 5-v-5 franchise mode, making FIFA Ultimate Team available to a larger number of players. We can expect 3v3 Soccer Mode to be very popular in the future. More detailed information will be released this week at E3. Larry Hogan’s desk, with a Senate committee concurring Friday that it is time to stop the bleeding. Worried that Maryland is going broke, House Republicans are planning to cut $1.6 billion more in spending, but the Senate’s vote makes it less likely they will pass the measure before the session ends, said Sen. Robert A. Zirbel, the Baltimore County Democrat who chaired the Budget and Taxation Committee. “We have to start living within our means,” he said. Sen. Karen M. Montgomery, the Anne Arundel County Democrat who chairs the committee, agreed. “The only way we’re going to see a balanced budget is by cutting more spending,” she said. Noting that Democrats make
