1. Support for Raster Images Raster images are created by combining hundreds of small dots (pixels) called pixels. The size of pixels determines the density (or pixels per inch) of the image. All photographs and graphics are based on raster images. Raster images can be edited using many tools:

- Vector graphics are made of lines, curves, and circles that are not connected to each other
- Bitmap images (also known as raster images or pixels) are a collection of dots, with each dot either black or white
- Paintbrush is a program that allows you to move, colorize, and line art to create a raster image
- Pen tool is used to add lines, curves, and circles

The Photoshop interface contains a palette that contains hundreds of basic color, gradation, and pattern tools. For example, the "lasso" tool is used to select an image area, "pen" tool is used to draw lines and curves, "spatter" tool is used to add lines, and "blob" tool is used to randomly colorize an image. You can use every tool in Photoshop to edit an image even from a contact sheet or transfer.

2. Simple But Intricate Editing The most powerful features in Photoshop are its innumerable brushes, filters, and other effects. You can quickly edit hundreds of pixels or thousands of pixels in Photoshop. Some tools can be especially useful for advanced image editing.

- Adjustment layers are layers that allow you to change values, such as brightness or hue
- Channel mixer is a tool that can create a new color by mixing different color values from the image
- Graduated filter is used to add a gradation or feathered effect to the image
- Lens tools is a set of tools that allows you to reshape and adjust an image
- Layer folder is a tool that allows you to control and combine multiple layers
- Layer style tool is used to apply effects and effects to an image
- Layer tools is a set of tools that allow you to control the effect of the layer
- Pattern tools is a set of tools that can create a new style of pattern
- Puppet warp tool is a tool that enables you to rotate or flip an image
- Retouch tool is used to edit a large image
- Spatter tool is used to add color to your image

Salivary gland stones. The authors report three cases of asymptomatic stones found incidentally in patients evaluated for a salivary stone. In this series of 30 consecutively treated patients with salivary stones referred to the University of Maryland-Baltimore, only three (10%) had symptoms referable to the salivary gland. There were 15 males and 15 females and an average age of 27 years, ranging from 16 to 48 years. Ten patients had upper-salivary stones and 15 had lower-salivary stones. The mean duration of symptoms prior to treatment was 24 months, ranging from one to 60 months. Common physical findings were dental crowding and esthetic complaints. The stones ranged in size from 1.0 to 3.0 cm. The initial treatment was fragmenting combined with extraction in 23 patients and extraction with lithotomy in seven. Ten patients had removal of the stones, four with concomitant extraction and six with extraction alone. Most of the patients in the present series had asymptomatic stones in the parotid glands, which were found during a routine sialographic examination.using

11:59 AM, Apr. 15, 2013 Local duo Derek and Shaun are placing a bounty on the head of notorious burglar John Dalton, who many in the community call 'The Ghost of Prairie Christian'. "Say the word out loud, 'Dalton's alive' and the reward doubles," says Shaun. Written by Nick J. Brunner For the Cincinnati Enquirer Some might say that driving back from a spontaneous power lunch at Corner Tap one Sunday afternoon this spring would call for a drive on the "sporty" route. But not Derek and Shaun Blodgett. Those two are in search of someone who makes their lives easier...—A six-person congressional delegation from North Carolina toured the Gaza Strip in November as part of an effort to understand the conditions for the Palestinians living in the Israeli-controlled enclave, the group said. The delegation visited with Palestinian and Israeli officials, spent time touring refugee camps and the West Bank and met with residents of Gaza. Delegation members included Sens. Richard Burr, R-N.C., and Richard Burr's wife, Cathy. The group said in a statement they "found the devastation of the Gaza Strip affecting the lives of thousands of people who live there." "I continue to be concerned about the humanitarian crisis in Gaza, especially as it relates to water and food," said Cathy Burr, who is the vice-chair of the Senate Republican Policy Committee. Cathy Burr was joined by Sen. Thom Tillis, R-N.C., while John Hackett, a member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Commerce, Justice, Science, and Related Agencies, was accompanied by his wife, Kelly. The Office of the Prime Minister released a statement from Gaza's Hamas government that welcomed the delegation, calling it "a positive sign." The five-day visit was scheduled and paid for by the Consulate General of the United States in Jerusalem, according to the delegation's statement. The statement says it was "a rare opportunity for congressional leaders to get a firsthand look at what life is like in the Gaza Strip today." "The delegation found the conditions of the people of Gaza to be truly distressing, and will continue to monitor U.S. assistance to Gaza as appropriate," said the statement. "The delegation was deeply
